Customer Reviews

Oh my. Words can't describe how terrifying this novel is. I'm going to try and do my best to not give spoilers out of respect for Brad Thor, but there is so much to talk about in this novel. First, this is my favorite Scot Harvath book. My favorite used to be State of the Union, then The Apostle, then Full Black, but this one is now on top IMHO. It had the right mix of action, facts, comedy, etc. Just a perfect blend. I like how Brad showed Scot's humanity and how the lifestyle he lives affects him. Most Americans just don't understand what these heroes willing to do violence to protect others go through. Either that or they just avoid it since it doesn't fit into their rainbow and unicorn filled land. But I can say that war and violence in defense does effect you and our veterans should be getting all the help they can from the country. So I'm glad Brad Thor showed this in the book. The facts in this book were overwhelming. On page 154, Brad gives some facts that are scary. Look up The Georgia Guidestones after reading this chapter. Chapter 41 was terrifying and I'm more than 100% sure that I'm on the MC (read and you will find out what the MC is). There are a ton more facts in this book but don't have time to write them all out with out spoiling things. One fact I can state is, I need to prepare for the coming fall. I need to have a Get Home Bag, several Bug-Out Bags, and more supplies at home after reading this. Finally, I'm going to quote something from the book that solidified my admiration for Brad Thor even more. "Harvath's attitude was: If you break into my house in the middle of the night with a butcher knife, I'm not going to leave my shotgun under the bed out of "fairness.
